December 2019 Washington, DC Market Trends Report
DC closes 2019 with continued record highs for median sales price; scarce supply continues to drive seller's market

Washington, DC – (January 14, 2020) – The following analysis of the Washington, DC housing market has been prepared for the Greater Capital Area Association of REALTORS® based on analysis of Bright MLS multiple listing data by MarketStats by ShowingTime.

Overview

December's median sales price was $635,000, up 6.0 percent from last year's median of $599,000 and ranks as the highest December level in the past 10 years. The 746 December sales represented a 28.4 percent increase versus last year and an 11.1 percent hike above the December five-year average of 671. Even with the median sales price at record highs, supply is still scarce with only 1.6 months of supply on hand. There was a 3.1 percent drop in contract activity compared to last December. Closed sales were up in all three housing segments compared to last December. Half the homes sold in December were on the market for 20 days or less.
